PRICE TWO CENTS

CASEMENT, CONVICTED OF HIGH TREASON, PENALTY OF DEATH IS IMPOSED

Leader of Irish Rebellion, Backed By Germans, Soon Found Guilty By London Jury

LONDON, June 29.—Sir Roger Casement was found guilty of high treason. The verdict of the historic trial came shortly before four o'clock this afternoon when the jury, which had been out less than an hour, brought in its verdict against the Irish knight. The death sentence was imposed.

Today's session of the court was given over to arguments of counsel and the charge to the jury. Sir Roger's chief counsel, Alexander Sullivan, who collapsed in court yesterday, was unable to appear today and his argument was taken up by Artemus Jones, assistant counsel for the defense. The attorney general, Sir Frederick Smith, summed up the case for the prosecution, after which the lord chief justice delivered his charge.

Mr. Jones admitted that at the time he thought it was an outrage for Sir Roger to go to Germany, but he insisted that the defendant had attempted merely to organize an Irish brigade for use against the British volunteers recruited by Sir Edward Carson. Mr. Jones was proceeding to argue that this did not constitute treason when the lord chief justice interrupted. He explained he would direct the jury that the law was that "giving aid and comfort to the king's enemies meant assisting the king's enemies in the war with this country and that any act that strengthened or tended to strengthen the enemy in the conduct of this war against us would be giving aid and comfort to the king's enemies and that any act which weakened or tended to weaken the power of this country to resist the attacks of the enemy was aiding and comforting the king's enemies."

Mr. Jones contended that the work Sir Roger did in Germany was precisely the same sort of work he carried on in Ireland before the war. While the importation of arms was a wrongful act, it did not constitute treason, but an offense against the defense of the realm. Mr. Jones' speech occupied a little more than half an hour after which the attorney general, Sir Frederick Smith, began summing up. He argued that even if the defense which Sir Roger's lawyers had attempted to set up was a valid one the evidence in the case had in no wise supported it.

In days before the war Sir Roger's defense might have had some weight but "one circumstance not insignificant had intervened—the greatest military power the world had ever seen was trying to destroy the British empire." The attorney general dwelt on the truce between the Irish parties. He said the question he asked at the beginning—why Sir Roger had gone to Germany—had never been answered because no answer was possible, since Sir Roger had gone to make arrangements to raise the hideous spectre of insurrection in Ireland.

The Germans, Sir Frederick continued, were not people who gave much for nothing. They were not going to keep soldiers of the Irish brigade as their guests so that they might go after the end of the war to free Ireland.

The attorney general's speech lasted for an hour, in which time he dissected the evidence in an exhaustive manner. He delivered no peroration but contended to the jurors his duty was as painful as theirs. He said he had discharged his duty and they must perform theirs.

The chief justice began his charge to the jury by saying that no prejudice must be entertained against members of the English bar because they had defended the prisoner against such a charge. He said they were performing the highest duty of members of the bar and that Mr. Sullivan had conducted the defense in accordance with the highest traditions of the English bar, delivering a speech of great eloquence.

"Treason in time of war, when all persons in this country are making sacrifice to defeat the common enemy is almost too grave for expression." The chief justice continued, "You must dismiss from your minds all you have heard or read outside this court. We have heard much about politics in Ireland. For myself in the court of justice I always feel anxiety when political passion is aroused. Pay no more attention to what has been said regarding conditions in Ireland before the war or after the war."

LANSING TELLS ENVOYS U. S. CANNOT DISCUSS MEDIATION AT PRESENT

Mexican Situation Not Cleared By Release of Prisoners Taken at Carrizal

MEN REACH EL PASO TODAY

Senate Passes $27,536,000 Emergency Appropriation For National Guard Movement to the Front

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 29.—For the first time since their mobilization on the border, national guardsmen today are in Mexico on military service.

Three motor trucks were loaded with New Mexico guardsmen last night and despatched down General Pershing's line of communication to help guard against its being cut.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Ignacio Calderon, minister of Bolivia and former minister of Ecuador, called at the state department today to request the United States to learn whether the United States would entertain an offer of mediation in the Mexican difficulty.

Mr. Calderon talked with Secretary Lansing about five minutes. Afterward he said he had been told that the United States could not discuss mediation in the absence of information that the American prisoners actually had been released and as to Carranza's reply to the demand for a statement of intentions toward the expedition in Mexico.

U. S. PRISONERS FREE. EL PASO, Texas, June 29.—Twenty-three negro troopers of the tenth cavalry and Lem Spillbury, Mormon scout, captured by the Mexicans at Carrizal and confined in the Chihuahua penitentiary were brought to the border at noon today and turned over to American military authorities. A shout of laughter rose from the thousands of Mexicans who had gathered to witness the arrival as the negroes filed from the special train. The prisoners were dressed in the scantiest and most non-descript garb. Some had only trousers on. One wore a shirt, while a towel encircled his waist. Others' heads were decorated with bandanas. All the troopers were worn and drawn from their experiences and all were serious save one who wore a broad smile. This one negro made himself the impromptu spokesman for his fellows. "We sure are glad to get back," he said.

GRACEFUL ACT INDEED. CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, June 29, via El Paso Junction, June 29.—High officials of the de facto government said here today that it would be a very "graceful act" on the part of the United States government if it would return machine guns and other war material recovered by the American troops in fights with Villa followers. Jose Chavez, a bandit, who has been operating in eastern Chihuahua near Hacienda has surrendered to Major Timoteo Rodriguez at Esmeralda.

WAR APPROPRIATION. WASHINGTON, June 29.—An urgent deficiency bill appropriating $27,536,000 for emergency expenses connected with the movement of the national guard to the Mexican border was passed by the senate today without debate. It already had passed the house.

EL PASO BRIDGE CLOSED. Great Crowds Gather to See Return of Troopers.

EL PASO, Texas, June 29.—The train carrying the American prisoners released from the Chihuahua penitentiary had not reached Juarez at 7:30 a. m., and it was said it might not arrive before 9 o'clock. Pending the arrival and transfer of the prisoners to the American side, traffic between Juarez and El Paso was stopped and other steps were taken to prevent any disorder.

Shortly before 8 o'clock an escort for the prisoners consisting of 25 motorcycles, manned by a detachment of the twentieth infantry and a provost guard arrived at the American end of the bridge. Their interest whetted by the international aspect of the occasion, border residents gathered at the international bridge early today to await the arrival of the 23 American troops captured at Carrizal on June 21, and released by General

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Official announcement of Carranza's orders for the release of the American troops captured at Carrizal reached the state department early today from Special Agent Rodgers at Mexico City. When he sent the message last night M. Rodgers expected to be handed a reply to the American note at any moment. Danger of an immediate break with the de facto government had been relieved last night by press dispatches saying the prisoners had been started for the border from Chihuahua City. Until Carranza replies to the demand for a statement of his attitude toward the American expedition in Mexico to protect the border, however, the crisis is only less imminent than before. High officials of the administration let it be known that the United States would proceed with its military operations to completely safeguard its citizens and territory and

TROOP TRAINS ON WAY TO BORDER RUSH WESTWARD

Sixteen Year Old Boy, 100 Pounds Weight, Enlists in Lima.

National guard units from New York and a number of the New England states are being sent to the border in wholesale numbers. Last night 12 troop trains passed through this city on their way to the border. All of the trains were made up of from 10 to 14 coaches. According to employees of the railroad five more trains, one of artillery, from the eastern part of the United States, will pass through Lima this afternoon. The transportation department of the railroad has arranged to handle nine more troop trains today and Friday. Officers of the Second regiment are of the opinion that no move to the state capital will be ordered this week, since the release by the head of the de facto government of Mexico, of the American troops who were made prisoners. It is believed that orders to depart to the mobilization camp at Columbus will not be

ATTACK IN WEST SHOWS NO SIGN OF SLACKENING

Heavy fighting in other sectors of the front has not caused the intensity of the struggle at Verdun to diminish. Another powerful attack was delivered last night by the Germans near Thiaumont redoubt, north of the citadel. Like the preceding assault, this was checked, the Paris war office declares, by the French artillery and machine gun fire, which decimated the German ranks.

The British are continuing their intense artillery fire and trench raids all along the extended front in France and Flanders. Official announcement in Austria-Hungary claims progress for the Teutonic counter offensive in Volynia. The danger of a Russian advance into Transylvania as a result of the overrunning of Bukovina by General Brusiloff's forces is also declared to have been passed.

The latest Teutonic success in the Volynian district was the capture of Linewka, near the river Stokhed, which means that the Russians have been pushed back across that river. Linewka is 23 miles southeast of

PRIMARY BALLOTS FOR AUGUST 8 WILL NOT BE SHORT ONES

Both Parties Have Two Columns of Assorted Contests.

Clerk Arthur J. Morris of the Allen county board of elections has received from Secretary of State Charles Q. Hildebrand the forms of the democratic and republican primary ballots which will confront the voters August 8. Each is two columns wide and more than eighteen inches in length.

On the democratic ballot there are three candidates for governor, four for lieutenant-governor, six for secretary of state, four for attorney general, two for the supreme bench, two for the United States senate, one for auditor and one for treasurer. With seven after the appellate bench the first column totals 30 names. The second column carries the names of five candidates for congress, four for members of the state central committee, three for the state senate, six for commissioner, six for surveyor, three for

4,000 Yaquis, Well Armed, Revolt Against Mexicans In Sonora

QUAYMAS, Sonora, Mexico, June 29.—Reports from outlying districts indicate renewed activity on the part of the Yaqui Indians. This has been anticipated by those familiar with conditions in Sonora because the campaign inaugurated by the de facto government in January for the purpose of ridding the country of the Yaquis has not as yet been a success.

Approximately eleven thousand troops were mobilized under General Diegues to drive the Indians from their strongholds in the Bacatecote mountains, but the soldiers were poorly equipped for the undertaking. They lacked discipline, organization and spirit and although the Mexican government may have desired an aggressive campaign the local leaders and men had no intention of taking the offensive against the savages whose fighting ability is well known throughout the republic. Like the Apache tribes of Arizona, the Yaquis have committed the most heinous atrocities. For this reason the troops fear to operate against the warriors. The strength of the Indians is not accurately known, but is estimated as being about ten thousand of which approximately four thousand are well armed fighting men. This force generally operates in bands of fifty to one hundred or more which make swift and unexpected raids upon outlying ranches and villages during the harvest season and at other times if their food supply happens to run low as is the case at the present time. Spies are maintained throughout the farming districts who keep the tribe well informed and assist in the raids. The Indians dress as do the peons with shirt and trousers of faded blue denim or khaki, usually the latter as it is more easily procurable, for many Yaquis have served in the revolutionary armies. A large straw hat, not unlike that worn by northern farmers, with brim turned down, protects them from the sun and conceals their identity when necessary; and their feet are protected from the rough country by leather sandals—guaraches, as they are called. This similarity of garb makes it difficult even for Mexicans to distinguish parties of Indians from troops of the de facto government and as a result bands have been able to enter towns before their identity was discovered. For example, the town of Sans, Sonora, was raided last year. The inhabitants saw the mounted body approaching with trumpets flourishing and drums rattling, but it was thought that an armed detachment of troops was arriving. Not until the Indians were actually in the town was it realized what had happened. Men, women and children were forced out of their homes and driven to the town plaza where all were stripped. Terrified and helpless they stood while the savages packed the clothing, looted the houses, gathered in the horses and mules, and rode off unmolested with four of the young girls.

The Mexican wife and family of an American, John Lehr, were carried off by the Indians during a raid upon the town of Suague Grande during November of last year after the seventeen year old son had been killed, but these captives were released last month when the Indians were forced to abandon one of their many water holes upon the unexpected approach of a vastly superior force of Mexican troops.

Want of food and clothing causes the Indians to make their forays and for this reason the productive lands of the American settlement south of the Yaqui river have been subjected to many costly incursions which have laid waste most of that region and forced the majority of the settlers to abandon their farms and return, in many cases penniless, to the United States.

Late information indicates that the Indians are now operating to the northward in the vicinity of Ortiz, a small town on the Southern Pacific railroad, thirty miles north of Quaymas.

RELEASE OF PRISONERS. Carranza's Reply to U. S. Ultimatum Expected Today.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Official announcement of Carranza's orders for the release of the American troops captured at Carrizal reached the state department early today from Special Agent Rodgers at Mexico City. When he sent the message last night M. Rodgers expected to be handed a reply to the American note at any moment.

Danger of an immediate break with the de facto government had been relieved last night by press dispatches saying the prisoners had been started for the border from Chihuahua City. Until Carranza replies to the demand for a statement of his attitude toward the American expedition in Mexico to protect the border, however, the crisis is only less imminent than before. High officials of the administration let it be known that the United States would proceed with its military operations to completely safeguard its citizens and territory and would continue to pursue bandits in Mexico wherever there was hope of overtaking them, regardless of any action Mexican military commanders may take.

It was apparent about the war and state departments today that the situation was critical. It had no effect however on efforts to speed up the mobilization of the national guard along the international line and to furnish an adequate supply of war material to meet any emergency.

Even should the Mexican reply disclaim any hostile intention and withdraw orders to Carranza military commanders offensive to the United States the border patrol would be maintained at the strength now contemplated while any danger from bandits continued.

To free itself from the menace of an army mobilized on its northern frontier, the Mexican government must comply also with the demands that it police adequately its border states and establish such firm military control that the raiding into the United States is improbable and the assembly of any large group of bandits impossible.

While such control is lacking, it is clearly indicated here that President Wilson is determined by force if necessary, to employ the army either along the line or in Mexico in such a way as to insure the safety of American lives and property along the border.

In announcing he had been advised by his foreign office of the order for the release of the prisoner, Mr. Arguedas said that his information was that General Carranza had taken the step "because he did not desire to aggravate the relations between the two countries."

SITUATION STILL GRAVE.

Release of U. S. Troopers Only Removes One Menace.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Release of the American troopers captured at Carrizal has removed one dangerous element in the Mexican situation, but it was apparent today that it had only somewhat relieved and had not removed the grave menace to continuance of friendly relations between the United States and the Mexican de facto government.

By freeing the prisoners General Carranza met only one demand made by President Wilson. The other, that Carranza declare his future attitude toward the American forces in Mexico remains unanswered until the latest communication arrives from Mexico City. It was expected today. On the contingency that the Carranza government may maintain its policy of attacking American forces moving in any direction except north activities looking toward speedy transportation of national guardsmen to the border showed no relaxation today.

There were two hopeful factors in the situation, however. First, whatever General Carranza's answer may be, it probably will require further diplomatic conversations, and thus hostilities may be averted, at least temporarily. Second, many observers were inclined to believe the yielding attitude of the Mexican government in the case of the prisoners indicates a tendency which may be reflected in further dealings.

The condition under which the United States government had refused to consider mediation, also is removed with the freeing of the troopers. Minister Calderon of Bolivia had an engagement with Secretary Lansing today to discuss the Latin-American offers to assist in arbitrating the dispute.

It is believed considerable influence must have been exerted on General Carranza by South American states with investments in Mexico and Mexican labor leaders who conferred with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor here yesterday. Mr. Gompers message to Carranza personally appealing for action to prevent a break. One American company with interests in Mexico is reported to have spent several hundred dollars on cablegrams and telegrams to de facto government officials during the last few days.

President Wilson considered the situation sufficiently relieved today to plan a trip to Philadelphia where he was to address the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World this afternoon.

EL PASO BRIDGE CLOSED

Carranza upon peremptory demand of President Wilson.

Those who assembled early were prepared to wait indefinitely in case the arrival of the special train bringing the prisoners over the Mexican Central is delayed by the condition of the road. Moving picture men had cameras planted at favorable points, but none except newspaper men were permitted to cross the bridge to witness the arrival of the troopers at Juarez.

General Francisco Gonzales, commandant at Juarez, and Andrew Garcia, Mexican consul in El Paso, last night completed preparations for turning over the prisoners to American military authorities. General George Bell, Jr., provided ambulances to transport the troopers to Fort Bliss, and one of his aides was at hand with a receipt for the men to be given to the commander of the de facto troops who accompanied the prisoners' special from Chihuahua City to prevent possible demonstrations by the populace.

HIGHEST SPOT IN WORLD WHERE WAR WAGED IS ADMELLA

Lofty Summit of Italian Alps Swarms With Soldiers.

Avalanches Are As Dangerous to Men as the Enemy.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ITALIAN ARMY, June 29.—Admella, which Virgil crowned "King of the Italian Alps," is the most elevated spot in the world where war has ever been waged.

Through the courtesy of the Italian general staff, which is desirous that the world outside Italy should know the hardships of this unprecedented campaign, the correspondent of the Associated Press was the first civilian allowed to witness the fighting on this colossal mountain, which is 11,500 feet high and covered with eternal snows.

The correspondent saw the mountain swarming with thousands of white-clad Alpine soldiers singing, alert, eager, crowding glaciers, challenging avalanches, charging the enemy with fixed bayonets—all above the clouds.

There the correspondent witnessed the action of heavy artillery, a battery of which fired from the highest point in the world where artillery had ever been placed or from which it had ever been fired. It seemed almost a miracle that such big guns could have been transported in two months of hard labor from a distance of fifteen miles to one of the valleys below. Over two hundred men had been required for the dragging of a single one of the pieces, and at one stage of the work an avalanche had swooped down from the mountain sides and devoured forty of the men.

The professional mountain climber never attempted to reach the top of Admella, but in summer the view of the surrounding Alps with Mont-Bianco the Jungfrau and Monte Rosa is the distance is considered the best in Europe. Winter and summer, the fighting there is under conditions that prevail only in the Arctic regions. There Austrians and Italians meet in silent death grips, their deaths and their scars all but unrecorded save in dry army annals, given but a brief line in the terse bulletins of General Cadorna.

While the Austrian and Italian cannon rumbled lastly, exchanging rude courtesies, or seeking to dislodge avalanches to better destroy and hamper the enemy, awakening echoes that leaped from dozens of miles up and down the abrupt peaks, the genial Italian colonel accompanying the correspondent remarked that in no other war had such fighting ever been, that neither the armies of Hannibal, nor Caesar, nor Napoleon ever dared engage in such work, that their armies, which did go over mountains not half the height, were hardly larger than a regiment of Alpine troops as today organized, that above all they did not winter in the mountains nor deal with heavy artillery, nor drag up to these fastnesses pound by pound, plank by plank, piece by piece, their food, their supplies, and the guns and ammunition.

These conditions are not limited to the Admella region, but repeat themselves on two-thirds of the Italian front, or over a line of 275 miles of mountain chains going from the Swiss frontier down to the banks of the Isone river from which can be seen the "bitter" blue of the Adriatic, as the poet d'Annunzio described it. Along this line titanic struggles take place daily of which the outside world never hears. It took five days for the correspondent to slowly climb the Admella crest and in this period the Italians succeeded in blowing off the top of another mountain called Coldi Lana, which suddenly burst into the air with its defenders who were on their side trying to explode a mine which would blow to pieces the Italian troops.

One of the curious facts connected with this mountain front is that nowhere have the song birds deserted it.

"If I were to write home that every night I go to sleep listening to the boom of cannon I would be readily believed, but if I added that often I lie awake for hours listening to the liquid trill of friendly nightingales in the nearby woods, my statement would be taken for a soldier's yarn," said an artillery officer late one night as he and the correspondent stopped on their way across a wooded little valley to listen to a nightingale's song. "That song is not an exception," he explained. "I have crossed this valley about this time of night for weeks on my way to my quarters, and that bird is always singing, no matter how violent the artillery noise."

In the upper mountain districts the correspondent noted that the skylarks held to their usual haunts with the same tenacity as the nightingales in the lower country, flying high in the air until they went out of sight above the snowy peaks, apparently undisturbed by the whirring of the shells that went through the air hundreds of feet above the soldiers.

This explanation was advanced by an officer of the Alpini who had been many years in the mountains. "These birds are used to the noises peculiar to the mountains, such as caused by the cracking of avalanches, the rolling of boulders from the peaks into the valleys, and an artillery fire here makes a noise not so very different from these others, the birds are not frightened away."

From here the correspondent returned by devious footpaths, on the backs of the older soldiers of the reserve, on sure-footed little donkeys, on railway air-lines that bridge the valleys, to the lower country where the fighting is better known, along the Isone river, where hills are hardly more than a thousand feet in height, where they drop to five hundred, three hundred feet, before the line slides off into the Adriatic. That the new effort of the Italians to advance will be unhandicapped by the difficulties of a year ago, when not only men but small arms and cannon were lacking, may be appreciated by the fact that now the army is equipped with numerous heavy cannons, new artillery, manufactured in Italy.

The correspondent saw these guns at work towards Monte Kuk and Monte San Michele, the high, impregnable hills held by the Austrians and again and again taken by the Italian soldiers at tremendous sacrifices, only to be compelled to surrender each time the crests of the hills because of the lack of heavy artillery to silence the heavy Austrian cannon.

DIVIDEND PAYMENTS BREAK ALL RECORDS

Showing Due to Copper Munitions, Oil, Sugar and Other Products.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Mid-year interest on dividend payments as compiled by the Journal of Commerce, will aggregate $292,372,540, exceeding last year's disbursement for that period, which constituted the previous record by $13,561,678. This extraordinary showing is due to various initial payments, resumption of dividends suspended at the outset of the war and many increased and extras by corporations in almost all lines of industry.

Copper producers have helped largely to swell the total by their increased and extra dividends. Many of the leading companies in that industry are making higher returns to stockholders than ever before. Manufacturers of munitions, explosives, oil, sugar, motor and the marine transportation companies as well as makers of dyestuffs, chemicals and textiles, have added to the volume by their distribution of profits in dividend form.

DETECT CONSPIRACY TO STEAL QUESTIONS

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—Members of the state board of dental examiners today permitted 14 Columbus, Cincinnati and Columbus dental students who were implicated in the plot uncovered last night to obtain copies of examination questions, to continue their examinations for licenses to practice dentistry in Ohio. This was done after board members obtained confessions from the students. Dr. A. F. Lincoff, of Marion, president of the examining board said it was his belief at least 30 students were originally implicated.

Dr. R. H. Vollmeyer, of Toledo, last night was informed a hall boy in the hotel where he is stopping had been bribed to steal copies of questions to be submitted at today's examination. The plot was frustrated through the substitution of a package which was supposed to contain the examination lists.

FLAG MAKERS MUST NOT SKIMP BANNER

NEW YORK, June 29.—The increased demand for American flags has led some of the flag manufacturers here to curtail the length and breadth of the star spangled banner under standard size and substitute mottored cotton for silk, and cotton for wool, says the commissioner of weights and measures. Twenty-five manufacturers were summoned before the commissioner yesterday and warned that they must stop giving short measure or substituting cheaper materials.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH WILL FROM BERLIN

CHICAGO, June 29.—The will of the late Mrs. Anna Anheuser-Busch, disposing of a $4,000,000 estate today is in the archives of the Cook county probate court, after a trip from Berlin negotiated through the state department at Washington. The document arrived yesterday.

Mrs. Busch who died in Pasadena, Calif., on April 8, was the daughter of the founder of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company, the widow of Ulrich Busch and the sister-in-law of the late Adolphus Busch of St. Louis.

The property is bequeathed to the children and grand children of the deceased.

SUPPLIES ARRIVE AT COLUMBUS CAMP

Hospital Corps is Ready For Service; Eighth Regt. on Duty.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—Ohio's biggest national guard regiment, the eighth, marched into Camp Willis today. It was the first to enter the mobilization camp following the orders issued by President Wilson over a week ago.

During the next few days the guard will be gathered rapidly in the new camp. Entraining orders for the sixth regiment of Toledo, the fourth of Columbus, the fifth of Cleveland, the second of Ada and the third of Dayton are expected in quick succession.

The infantrymen of the eighth arrived today from various points. Its twelve companies are located as follows:

Company A, Bucyrus; B and F, Akron; C, Canton; D, Wooster; E, Ashland; G, Wadsworth; H, Shreve; I, Tiffin; K, Alliance; L, Galion, M, Mansfield.

The regiment is commanded by Colonel Edward Vollrath. Former Adjutant General C. C. Weybrecht, of Alliance is his lieutenant colonel.

Supplies for the troops arrived yesterday and were transported to the camp during the day on large motor trucks. The militiamen who went into camp today found everything complete for their comfort and health.

The second field hospital corps commanded by Major H. H. Bailey, also moved to the camp today. The hospital company will be ready for any emergency.

The Y. M. C. A. played its part in the mobilization today. The infantrymen found awaiting them a large tent in which writing tables had been installed and stationery provided in order that writing home might be made easy.

The association had placed in charge of its tenth Beth Drummond, a Y. M. C. A. secretary, whose experience is largely made up of army life.

EARLY ROAD CASE HEARD IN COURT

Legality of the vacation of the J. B. Early road in Bath township by the Allen county commissioners was for hearing this forenoon before Probate Judge F. C. Becker. Andrew Allison, who resides at the east end of the road in Bath township, appealed the case to probate court. Preliminaries were heard and arguments by legal counsel for both sides were made. Judge Becker reserved his decision.

Attorney Otis Lippincott represented Allison at the hearing. Mr. Allison is the chief dissenting resident in the line of the road and does not want the highway vacated.

County commissioners accepted the report of the viewers at the third reading and ordered the road abandoned. Mr. Allison was given $50 damages. Commissioners were of the opinion the road is little used and not worth the money spent on it. Mr. Allison is fighting the case because his children have not outlet to reach their school.

In case Judge Becker decides in vacation of the road, a jury trial will be held to set the damages which he will receive.

Mrs. William McGee was removed last evening from the City hospital by the Patterson ambulance. Other removals were, William Gibbs, who was severely injured last evening. He was removed from the corner of Main and Elm streets. John Muschilton, Jr., was removed today from the hospital to his home at 1511 South Metcalf street.

The Consumers' Fuel & Supply company have been given the contract to furnish 300 tons of coal, at $2.75 a ton, and 100 tons at $2.70, for the infirmary, the coming winter. The commissioners let the contract.

Commissioners of Allen county were at Harrod today, in connection with the inspection of a ditch.

HOW TO FEEL GOOD TOMORROW Indigestion quickly develops sick headache, biliousness, bloating, sour stomach, gas on stomach, bad breath or some of the other conditions caused by clogged or irregular bowels. If you have any of these symptoms, take a "Cathartic Tablet" this evening and you will feel better in the morning. H. F. Fortkamp.

LIEBKNECHT CONVICTED.

BERLIN, June 29.—Via Amsterdam to London.—Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Socialist leader was sentenced today to thirty months penal servitude and dismissal from the army for attempted high treason, gross insubordination and resistance to the authorities.

SPENCERVILLE IS EN FETE FOR CO. M

Spencerville extended Company F, Second regiment, Ohio National Guard, a reception and dinner last evening, before the troops move toward the border. A delicious menu was spread, consisting of fried spring chicken and all the good things which go with such a meal.

There was a program of patriotic speeches and music and the town was fully decorated. The citizens turned out en masse and the country fared for miles around, attended the farewell. Such a large crowd has not been seen in Spencerville for some time.

Veterans of the Civil war marched beside members of Company F and the new recruits. Captain Howe is in charge of the company and accepted the honor extended him and his men by citizens last night, with gracious response.

Guy Shaffer, clerk in the county recorder's office, is a member of Company F. He has been at Spencerville the past week, drilling with the members.

Mrs. Elmer Barth of South Elizabeth, who recently left for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Osa of Titusville, Pa., has been critically ill since her arrival. A nervous breakdown has caused her suffering and she was in such a condition that the street was closed to traffic for a block. At the last report she is said to be greatly improved.

The Allen county common pleas court has refused to strike certain statements from the petition of the Monray Realty company against T. P. Riddle. Riddle filed the motion, asking for cancellation of these parts of the petition. The court overruled the motion.

PARIS, June 29.—After a violent bombardment which lasted the entire day the Germans attack the French positions northwest of Thiaumont in the Verdun sector, but were repulsed with heavy losses, according to an official statement issued by the war office today. The French machine gun and certain air is declared to have devastated the attackers.

PETROGRAD, June 29.—Russian troops fighting in Volhynia and Galicia yesterday took prisoner 221 officers and 10,285 men, says the official statement issued today by the Russian war department.

BERLIN, June 29.—(via London)—The fighting on the western front attained proportions of considerable violence at various points yesterday and last night, the war office announced today, but attacks of the British and French were repulsed everywhere.

RUNAWAY FORD GETS INTO RIGHT PLACE

Wild Machine Lands Right in Hoover-Roush Big Window.

There are many, many good Ford stories making the rounds, some say they emanate directly from the Ford publicity department but at least one must be attributed to Lima, if the little Ford feels slighted in this respect, an incident this morning proves that he is perfectly capable of breaking into the limelight without the aid of his master.

At a fairly early hour this morning, Mr. Cone of the Central Oil Co., pulled up in front of the White cafe for a bite to eat. Not expecting to tarry long, he allowed the engine to run while, it is surmised, vibrated the brake line at the same time throwing in the clutch.

The car made a bee line for the opposite side of the square, over an 18 inch curb and into the plate glass window of the Hoover-Roush furniture store breaking it into millions of pieces. This firm in explanation to the pedestrians the cause of the accident, placed therein a card bearing the words "A Ford is small but mighty."

KILLED BY FALL FROM TRAIN.

TOLEDO, O., June 29.—Ward Lander, 40, of South Milford, Ind., was killed this morning when he fell from a New York Central passenger train. Several days ago Lander had no money to pay fare for himself and son Paul, 15 years old, who were beating their way between baggage cars when the father was killed. Paul Lander, penniless, is unable to find his mother and sisters.

SHAWNEE M. E. WOMEN HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Mrs. Thomas Broderick of Shawnee township, R. F. D. No. 1, was elected president of the Ladies' Aid society of Shawnee Methodist church at the annual meeting, held yesterday at the home of George L. Breece in Shawnee township. For three years Mrs. Broderick has successfully filled the office.

Miss Anna Hoyer was elected vice president, Mrs. B. N. Nye, secretary, and Mrs. E. O. Zurnehly, treasurer of the society. About 60 attended the meeting, of which nearly one-third were children.

The meeting took the form of a neighborhood picnic. Each member took a basket, filled with good things, and her children. The lawn at the Breece home stretches away in delightful fashion and it was here, in the evening, the long table was spread, filled with delicious food.

The Rev. W. W. Consteln, pastor of the church, invoked divine blessing. Miss Mitchell favored with readings after the business had been disposed of.

Miss Mabel Breece, daughter of the household, was hostess and royally welcomed the visitors to her rural home.

COMPANY C WILL HAVE DAILY HIKE

During the stay of Company C in Lima the future program of daily routine will include a hike in the morning to the city park. This morning members of the company marched to the city park and spent several hours drilling and learning military and formation tactics. A ball game between members of the supply and guard companies is held each day at the Faurot park, and drill on the public square in the evening concludes the program for the day.

The soreness and stiffness that resulted from the first week's drilling and hiking is not being complained of much any more by members of the company. Instead the enforced idleness which results from the shortage in equipment keeps most of the members of the company looking for some diversion by which they can work off their surplus energy. Some of the sports indulged in besides baseball are: Boxing, wrestling, card playing and leap frog. Captain Clark Creps was presented this morning with a combination mirror and shaving mug outfit by "Wap" Masterpole. The presentation speech was made in the armory by the donor of the gift and was received with much applause by members of the company.

JAMES BUCKLES DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

James Buckles, 70 years old, died at his home at 116 North Pine street, this morning. For five years he has been ill, suffering from a complication of diseases. He was born in Spencerville, but for some years had resided in Lima.

Up to the time of his illness he was engaged in the shoe repair business. Five children survive. They are: Mrs. Kargo, Mrs. Tyler and Mrs. Fraunfelder of Lima; Mrs. Filson of Belling, Mont., and Mrs. Marshall of Napoleon.

Services have not yet been arranged. The Rev. O. E. Knepp, pastor of the First United Brethren church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Davis, will have charge of the funeral.

DIES AT FORT WAYNE.

Mrs. Dora Meeks, wife of Clarence E. Meeks, of 266 South Nye street, died at St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Wayne this morning. Mrs. Meeks was taken to Ft. Wayne a week or so since, where she was subjected to an operation.

The body will be accompanied to Lima tonight by Otis E. Davis of the Williams and Davis company, and will be taken to her late home.

Funeral arrangements will be announced after the arrival of the body.

SOULS THAT CARE HOUSED IN FRAIL BODIES OF WOMEN

Lacking Man's Physical Strength, They Possess High Courage—Suffer Almightily.

The story is told of a sixteen-year-old girl, who, when the village in which she lived was attacked by an enemy at war, stayed in her burning home and by means of a telephone managed to signal the artillery of her countrymen. They were thus enabled to get the range and retake the village, but not until the brave girl had been discovered by the enemy. She was taken prisoner and later court-martialed and shot.

This is a true story and happened during the early part of the European war. It shows the important parts that women play in the affairs of the world, but, more than that, it proves their bravery.

Despite the fact that women are the weaker sex, when it comes to suffering, they are more courageous in heart than men.

Women suffer in silence. How many women are there who would give almost anything to say, "I have stopped having headaches?" Thousands and thousands of women say, "I am nervous and all run down." "Life is just a misery." They go on, suffering because they shrink from making known their ills. The subject of the ills of women is a delicate one, but it is perfectly proper to say that in most cases women suffer from lack of vitality, which brings on nervous breakdown and often affects the stomach. It is especially designed to overcome these so-called "Modern Maladies" and it is so highly endorsed by women because it acts so favorably upon the women suffering from a general breakdown peculiar to their sex.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps you look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

IDA M. TARBELL TO LECTURE BEFORE THE LIMA CHAUTAUQUA

Famous Writer on Public Questions is Feature of Program.

Is Regarded as Foremost Woman of the Day on the Platform.

The coming of Ida M. Tarbell, America's most famous publicist, to Lima the week of the big Chautauqua, beginning Thursday, July 13, is one of the greatest attractions offered. This is the first year of Miss Tarbell's appearance in Chautauqua work.

She is unquestionably the one great lecturer of the year. At last she has consented to devote some time to the Chautauqua platform, and it is a matter of some pride with the Coit-Alber Chautauqua company that it was instrumental in bringing about this decision on the part of this distinguished woman.

Miss Tarbell needs no introduction to any thoughtful American. Her work as a constructive journalist is known wherever the English language is spoken. For a number of years she was associate editor of The Chautauquan, and was therefore familiar with the splendid field afforded by the Chautauquas for the propagation of the notable reforms for which she has contended, but the press of her literary work has until now prevented her taking advantage of the opportunity. During the past year her literary work has led her into extensive research in the smaller communities, in whose problems she is vitally interested. This fact militated toward her acceptance of the offer to appear upon the Coit-Alber Chautauquas, and made possible her appearance here as a feature attraction on the great Chautauqua program. She will speak on "Industrial Idealism," a theme she is peculiarly qualified to discuss.

A few pertinent facts regarding the career of Miss Tarbell will be of interest. Miss Tarbell was born in Erie county, Pennsylvania; graduated at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., in 1880; received M. A. degree in 1883; L. H. D. degree from Allegheny and Knox Colleges, 1910. She was a student in Paris at the Sorbonne and College de France from 1891 to 1894; a staff writer and associate editor of McClure's Magazine from 1894 to 1906, where her Standard Oil Series received such wide notice. Since 1906 she has been associate editor of the American Magazine.

The best known of Miss Tarbell's books are: Short Life of Napoleon Bonaparte; Life of Madame Roland; Early Life of Abraham Lincoln; Life of Abraham Lincoln (2 volumes); History of the Standard Oil Company (2 volumes); He Knew Lincoln; Father Abraham; The Tariff in Our Times; The Business of Being a Woman; The Ways of Women. "A peaceful nation unprepared for peace!" In six words Miss Tarbell sums up the situation in this country.

One is struck by the absolute fairness of Miss Tarbell's positions on all questions discussed in her "Industrial Idealism." She has discovered that what the heads of certain industrial concerns call 'good business' is simply making the golden rule work every day.

In forceful, picturesque fashion, this foremost publicist and journalist of the world presents facts and truths, making them sound like romance. On the platform she is a talking publicist, which every lecturer should be.

W. O. ROBBER STILL ELUDES THE POLICE

Although the police department has initiated a diligent search for the man who held up and robbed William Shaw, ticket agent of the Western Ohio railroad, Tuesday evening, no trace of the thief has been uncovered. All surrounding towns have been given a description of the fugitive in hope that he may be picked up.

Although authorities were at first of the opinion that the deed had been perpetrated by some local person, they have abandoned this idea because of the manner in which the job was done. It is surmised that he was informed of the location of the safe and the habits of the agent by some resident of Lima.

COURT NEWS

Judge William Klinger of the Allen county common pleas court, has announced the following rulings:

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company directed a judgment of $12,000 in favor of Geo. W. Sanders be entered against them.

Sanders sued for damages.
The case of Mary E. Collins and Ida J. Bowers against Harvey Bowers, for equitable relief, was dismissed.

The divorce case of Mrs. Ellen E. East against James W. East, has been dismissed in court. Mrs. East will pay the court costs.

M. A. Horn was granted a judgment of $28.11 against Theodore Feist and Charles L. Hardesty, of the firm of Feist & Hardesty, when the case was heard in court yesterday afternoon.

The $50 difference claimed by Mrs. Susan Custer in her case against the City of Lima, on account of measurement of lots for improvement by paving, was allowed by the court. The city can collect but $528.04 for the improvement, and will be obliged to pay the court costs. She was assessed $608.04.

PUBLIC FORUM

A CAMPAIGN OF LIES VILLIFICATION.

Editor Times-Democrat:

Charles Evans Hughes, late justice of the supreme court of the United States and republican candidate for president, makes the grave assertion that President Wilson is responsible for the conspiracies and alien intrigues on American soil in the interest of a foreign nation by its representatives residing in this country. This charge against the president is false, and as a lawyer and jurist, the republican presidential candidate knows it is false.

So serious and sweeping an accusation should be supported by incontrovertible proof but Mr. Hughes does not supply a word or a line to justify his infamous charge, nor can he. No man worthy to be the successor of Washington and Lincoln would make an assertion so utterly without foundation without proof of its truth, and no honorable man could make such a charge without being absolutely certain that it can be substantiated by conclusive evidence.

Mr. Hughes is a lawyer and knows that the president could not act on mere public rumors, but had to await the report of the secret service men.

As a basis for action in the matter of the conspirators, when he had this he acted promptly in every case. Dr. Dernberg was expelled from this country. Attaches of the German legation at Washington were given passports. There was no unnecessary delay as the republican candidate would have the country believe. His unfounded charge indicates that he favors a campaign of lies and villification. It is the "keynote" from which the anything-to-beat-Wilson crowd is to draw their inspiration.

Mr. Hughes' intemperate words disclose the desperate situation he is forced to meet. His ill-considered statement will have no other effect upon the public mind than to alienate fair-minded voters from his support. An ex-justice of the supreme court should not be a mud-thrower.

N. C. A. RAYHOUSER, Lima, Ohio.

Editor Times-Democrat:

Mr. Roosevelt is back in the republican party. In 1913 he said in his farewell address on the eve of his departure for South America:

"Win or lose, whatever the outcome, I am with you, and I am in this cause to fight to the end. We are dedicated to this great war for righteousness and while life lasts we cannot and will not abandon it. . . . The men who believe we will ever betray these ideals or abandon the task to which we have set ourselves do not know us."

If the republican party is no better than Roosevelt said in 1913 and 1913, there is just as much reason for defeating it now as there was then.

Mr. Roosevelt discoursed eloquently on the necessity for its overthrow, about "boosism" and "privilege" and the "malefactors of great wealth" that controlled the party in the interest of "big business."

Tell us, Mr. Roosevelt, wherein the republican party is better now than it was three or four years ago.

DOLL PARTY DRAWS THROG AT PARK

150 Children Participate in Parade and the Story Hour.

Katherine Bourk, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bourk of 319 West Wayne street, won the prize, a box of candy, for having the prettiest doll and the nicest dressed one in the big doll parade, held yesterday afternoon at Fawcett park, under the auspices of the Civic league. She entered two dolls, Genevieve and Josephine, and they rode side by side in her doll buggy. They were dressed in white and had a coat and hood of white fur trimmings. Their small owner was as pretty as the dolls.

The prizes were awarded by Mrs. M. P. Colt, Mrs. A. L. Jones, Mrs. F. C. Becker, Mrs. W. B. Van Note and Miss Helen Kerr, acting as judges. They announced decision was difficult, on account of the number of pretty children and pretty dolls in the parade.

One hundred and fifty children attended. The party drew parents from every walk of life to see the children revel in the doll parade. Many children were dressed as grown-ups. Others were in their daintiest frocks. Boys marched in the parade. Some of the girls carried their babies. Others pushed them in gaily-decorated doll carts. The judges reviewed the parade and announced decision at the close.

They awarded a prize to Marcelle Bowles of 1020 West Spring street for having the funniest doll creation. She made it herself out of a milk bottle, an old stocking and pieces of silk. It was built on the rag-doll style.

Susan Swisher was dressed as a "war bride" and carried a doll. Her veil was a piece of old lace curtain. Royal Stewart entered a cat doll. Mary Churchill had the smallest doll in the lot. Louise Lombard carried her doll in one arm and her small pet dog in the other. John Crawford was officer of the day. He rode a gaily-decorated velocipede in the parade.

The children enjoyed stories told by Miss Lucile Burkhardt, who has been officiating in a like capacity at Lincoln park, at the close, and talked about the doll parade, much in the gossipy manner in which women of older years discuss clothes.

The party, which was such a great success, was originated and carried out by Miss Blanche Werum, supervisor of public playgrounds, who works under the auspices of the Civic league.

VOL. 1. INDIAN LA No. 4

WILLIARD CLEVENGER, Editor

WEATHER—Great. WATER—Best Ever.

Someone forgot to shut off the draught last night and the result was that everyone wished for more blankets. The northeast wind gets a dandy whack at us here on the shore. The chef felt the result of the wind with the rest of us and gave us a treat of pancakes and syrup for breakfast.

The weather and marshmallow roast was a howling success. This is a literal fact. The program had a musical number by the boys minstrel troop that was the greater hour of the evening. "Mid" as the chorus director deserves credit for getting so much noise from so many bashful (?) boys.

Bob King is so anxious to win his camp emblem that he won't do anything very bad to get him mentioned in "The Tomahawk". However, we decided that he can't forever keep our eagle eye from detecting something wrong with him. Watch what happens tomorrow.

Say, if this striving for honors in tent inspection keeps up we will have to hire expert inspectors. A couple of amateurs, Mr. Dempster and Mr. Dille volunteered their services today and couldn't find anything to kick about. They looked at Bobby King in his baseball suit and decided that No. 4 was the best. This was heart-breaking to the other three tents as the award of ice cream hung in the balance.

Did anyone observe how quickly Mr. Dille made the repair on his tire. If he can work as fast he ought to start a repair shop.

Herb MacGinness and "Mary Louise" are reading the house-furnishing ads in the magazines. What's the reason, Herb?

Paul Foust took a tumble and scratched his arm. For not reporting the injury Paul was the "hero" for awhile.

Joe Kirk is not satisfied with the cooling waters of the lake for bathing, so today, he entertained the crowd at dinner by diving over Robinson into the dishwasher. Joe's ma will have to sew on a few buttons. Ask the chef how they came off.

Attention! Attention! Runt Hunter can swim his own length. Some class, Bob, keep up the work.

Mid and Herman returned to camp all smelly with stinkum. We don't like this smell as it is not necessary around camp. Don't fool around with any more "Flippers", you guys.

Reese rode to Lakeview for a new pair of trousers today. Say, Lloyd, tell us what you have done with the old ones.

Louis Rutledge of Cincinnati, says he wants to spend the last week with us. Glad to have you here, Louis.

Sad news. Tent No. 2 felt in their bones that they could lose inspection today, so had their flag at half staff all morning. I guess some people are superstitious alright, alright.

WORTHY ACTION

Action worthy of consideration was taken Tuesday evening by the Lima Board of Education when it was determined to submit the question of a bond issue, for necessary buildings and repairs for the city schools, to the voters of the city at the primary election August 8 and not delay the matter. Following the report of the state inspector as to the condition of the local school properties in heating, ventilating and proper capacity, the board made immediate inquiry into the actual needs and amounts necessary to take care of the same. Architects were employed in an advisory capacity, and as a result of the careful investigations it has been determined to not delay placing the matter before the people, and that as soon as possible, in order that needed improvements may be made before the school year is again opened.

The report of the state inspector has placed heavy responsibility upon the board, without funds to carry out the demands. With the decision of the board to submit the proposition to the voters at the August primary, the matter is placed before the people of Lima to determine whether our schools should be placed in condition to not only take care of the present needs, but to meet the assured future growth.

NOT OUR WAR

President Wilson has never wanted war. In the days when his opponents attacked him and tried to goad him into the use of the armed forces of the United States, he remained steadfast to his determination that the blood of young American soldiers should never be shed except as the last recourse in the effort to uphold the honor of the nation.

Once, when even greater eventualities were threatened, the patience of President Wilson's statesmanship was rewarded by diplomatic victory that made the shedding of blood unnecessary. It was the president's previous moderation that gave such force to the ominous ultimatum which brought full concession to the rights of America and humanity.

No president in the history of the United States has ever placed the cause of the people of the United States upon a higher plane. No president has ever struggled more valiantly to preserve peace with honor. His critics have proved the case for President Wilson. Then unanimous approval of his present course has not dulled the edge of his desire for honorable peace.

The immovability of the president in the face of selfish and partisan criticism, coming from those who thought more of personal advantage than of the welfare of the nation, has been the best security of the American people throughout the time the world has been darkened by war clouds.

If the sword of righteousness must now be unsheathed, the American people know that it is because peaceful means have been exhausted. If the sword is raised to strike, it is because the head of the de facto government of Mexico refuses to respect the rights of America.

No president has ever tried so hard to interpret the real spirit of America. Mr. Wilson has said that he would rather know what the men and women, gathered around their own fireside, are saying than to listen to the orations of the self-appointed.

In his handling of the Mexican problem, President Wilson has been guided by the single impulse to do what the American people would have him do—to exhaust all the peaceful means at his disposal to protect the lives and property of Americans, and, failing in that, to hold the honor and dignity of the nation by the use of its armed forces.

The note written by the state department to General Carranza in response to his threat to attack the American troops presented the complete case of the American government against Mexico. As in the European situation, when the ultimatum with its ominous note brought full concessions, it marked the end of President Wilson's patience.

The lives of the American soldiers in Mexico, soldiers who were sent there to protect the border from the raids of bandits, bent on murdering Americans, had been threatened.

In the night of righteousness, the sword of America was then raised to strike, and in the struggle that threatens, the nation enters upon its task with a clean and fearless heart.

Behind the president, who has so truly represented the charitable spirit of the American people, behind the president now in his grim determination to use the full military and naval strength of the nation in support of the American troops in Mexico, stand the mighty host of patriotic Americans, united, valiant and conscious of the faithfulness of their leader to the ideals of real Americanism.

One thing makes it appear that Hughes is two-faced. Teddy says the judge was nominated because the German-Americans hate T. R. Then he whoops it up for the judge. Now are the German-Americans going to accept the candidate of a man who calls them "traitorous vipers" or are they going to stick to Wilson, who, while not unneutrally favorable to them, has been fair?

Bond issues for street and water works and river improvements and a new Y. M. C. A. helped boost Lima during the fortnight around the close of April and the first of May. August 8 gives a chance for another boost—bonds for respectable sewers and a new industrial high school building.

You may have noticed that Hizoner Mayor Simpson appointed a Republican to draw the salary of Police Judge Jackson when the latter, a Democrat elected by the voters of Lima, responded to the call for the militia.

Wouldn't it be great if the powder wasted in noise on July 4 could be utilized in taking the dignity and sass out of some of the generals and presidents just south of the Rio Grande?

The man who tells a candidate the truth about his chances is rarely believed by the candidate—partially because he is rarely encountered.

What ever became of the old-fashioned campaigner who passed out long green arguments instead of giving cheque books to his managers?

The dispute with Carranza cannot be expected to increase the favor of Americans with regard to chili con carne.

More than one candidate is praying that the mobilization order will hold off until after the primaries.

GOOD EVENING: The mother who didn't raise her boy to be a soldier is generally the one who holds out on the tax assessor.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Mutual of the release of a six-part film allegory, "Purity," featuring Audrey Munson, famous artist's model and an international beauty, on July 17.

The story is taken from Greek mythology. Purity wanders over the earth exerting a good influence on everything. She is loved by a struggling poet who idolizes her. They both love, but he is unable to sell his poetry and marriage is impossible because of his poverty. Purity's wonderful beauty and grace of body are seen by an artist who gets her to pose for an allegorical painting. She does it to get money that her sweetheart's poems may be published. She is successful and the lovers are happily united.

The allegorical characters, Evil, Beauty, Art, Music and Drama all play important roles in this remarkable photoplay. Prominent in the cast supporting Miss Munson are Eugene Forde, Nigel de Bruiller and William Carroll. There are numerous ballets which add delightful ancient atmosphere to the action of Purity.

WHY WILLIAMS ISN'T ON THE SCREEN

Earle Williams, the Vitaphone star who won favor in "My Official Wife," "My Lady's Slipper," "The Jugger-naut," "The Sins of the Mothers" and "The Goddess," has received hundreds of letters of inquiry as to the reason of his non-appearance on the screen in his Vitaphone productions. For the past six months Mr. Williams has been working in a serial by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, which was originally intended for release during the latter part of last May. But unfortunate weather conditions during the winter months held up the work, extending the time of production, which will entail work on his part well into the summer. The serial is now scheduled for release in September.

There is no limit to a screen star's ambition. Ann Pennington, now a star on the Paramount program, wants to be able to act like Sarah Bernhardt and save money like Harry Lauder. Her first part on the screen will be that of "Susie Snowflake" in the Famous Players' production of the same name.

Marguerite Courtot, Gaumont-Mutual star, believes in beauty unadorned. When not before the camera, she uses neither powder, rouge nor pencil. Her hair is naturally fluffy and has never known an iron. But she does take particular care of ten pink shining little nails.

La Guayra is the gateway of Venezuela. Through this little port passes everything from cow-hides shipped to New York to diplomats bound for Caracas. La Guayra is the warden of the shipping, the connecting link between the capital and the world.

Since La Guayra's principal excuse for existence is found in the ships that come and go, it is altogether fitting and proper that the life and the architecture of the town should center on the water front. At its widest the city is only a few blocks wide, and it is built on the sloping beach in a long curve that fronts throughout its length on the busy wharves. The impression giv-on is that of some great outdoor theatre, engrossed in the doings below.

The old castle on the hillside is falling to ruins, even the bull ring is not in as good repair as it might be, but the great concrete break-water, one of the most daring of engineering works in South America in its day, is kept groomed up to the minute. The day of castles is past, but the usefulness of the break-water that makes the harbor is only beginning. The long concrete dike runs out to sea for two thousand feet, rising half a dozen yards above the waves that beat its sides, turning what was one of the most dangerous of anchorages into one of the safest.

The little city itself is neither beautiful nor particularly pleasant to live in. The streets are narrow, the houses mean except for a few on the principal business street. The heat is almost always intense, and the well-to-do in La Guayra generally live in one of the cooler seaside hamlets up or down the coast. The picturesque peak of Picacho towering back of the town is largely responsible for the heat, for besides decorating the landscape, the mountain acts as a reflector for the sunlight.

Wherever you go in La Guayra, your road is pretty sure to lead back to the wharves. Almost always there is a ship there, loading or unloading, the swarthy porters bustling the bales of hides, the bags of coffee and cacao, with a stolid indifference to the heat that almost knocks the idle onlooker down.

UNCLE SAM "SWATS" THE HOUSE FLY

The ordinary house fly carries about with him, recent government experiments show, an amount of uncleanness equal to 2 to 3 per cent of his weight.

If the average man were so unclean as that, he would have on his body about four pounds of filth.

A cow or horse as dirty as a fly would carry 20 to 25 pounds. The fly does not weigh much, but it can harbor millions of disease-giving germs. The dirt on a fly is about one-half bacteria — bacteria of many kinds, large and small, thick and thin, long and short.

Germs Multiply Rapidly.
If, out of its abundance of bacteria, the fly deposits a typhoid germ in a can of milk, there is every likelihood that in a short time there will be enough typhoid germs in that milk to make it a dangerous, frequently a fatal, poison. In the experiments on this subject, conducted by the department of agriculture, a number of flies were caught and washed in sterile, distilled water.

Uncleanliness to the amount of from 2 to 3 per cent of the fly's weight settled at the bottom of the tubes. Of this about half was bacteria.

Carries Tubercle Germs.
In addition there remained in solution in the water enough dirt to discolor it.

The fly can and does carry the germs of tuberculosis. Flies which had been allowed access to animals suffering from this disease were caught and washed in sterile water.

Inoculation tests from them subsequently proved that they bore living, virulent, tubercle bacilli.

CONCEIT OR SELF-CONFIDENCE

VERY OFTEN we have been accused of being conceited, haven't we? And quite as often we have accused some other person of being in the same condition, haven't we? But always when the term "conceited" is applied to us, we say it is wrong, that people are mistaking a certain necessary self-confidence for a less worthy thing. Then if the case holds true for us that we are self-confident instead of being conceited, why doesn't it hold true in the other cases?

To be conceited, according to Webster, is to entertain a flattering opinion of one's self, but to be self-confident is to realize one's ability to do a certain thing and act accordingly. The latter is as necessary to success as breathing is to life. Both are fundamentals. Self-confidence comes from knowledge and personality, from which grows success. There is no place for the man or woman who has not self-assurance based on principle. They are the ones who go ahead doing with calmness what they know they can do, therefore accomplishing their tasks with little effort. But the conceited man or woman flatters himself or herself into believing they are competent to do something of which they know nothing. With the self-assurance born of conceit they fool others into giving them credit for knowing more than they do, but when the time comes for actual work, their structure built upon ignorance is tumbled about their heads. He who knows little thinks he knows much, but he who knows much, bewails the fact that he knows so little. And so we find them—the conceited man and the inhabitant of the house built upon the sand, and the self-confident man the inhabitant of the house upon the rock. And yet if we become too self-confident we might overestimate our powers, and thereby become conceited. Ah, me, the world is full of mistakes. Perhaps we, the self-confident, are conceited, after all.

Sometimes a man is so hard up for something to boast of he will brag on his ignorance of classical music.

As a general thing, if a man would pay more attention to what his wife tells him she wouldn't have to repeat it so often.

Prof. Homer Rodeheaver, of the Billy Sunday evangelistic party, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Conner, Tuesday night. Mr. Rodeheaver was on his way to Springfield, to take charge of the music at the Christian Endeavor convention being held there this week.

Mrs. George Beaman of Los Angeles, and Mrs. John Bender of Waukegan, Ill., were complimented this afternoon by Mrs. Harry Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Travers of Brice avenue, have as their guest, their granddaughter, Miss Alice Johnston of Dinard, Minnesota. While here she will study with Miss Gail Watson.

Members of the Young Ladies' Aid of the Market Street Presbyterian church, children and friends, enjoyed their annual picnic at Fawcett park yesterday. This was the final meeting of the society until September.

Members of the Social Ten, Mrs. Burkhardt's division, of Spring Street Lutheran church, will meet with Mrs. Arthur Kasson of South Metcalf street.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Michael of West Market street, have as their house guest their daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Louer of Chicago.

Miss Edith Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of South Nye street, was married yesterday to Mr. William Bowersock, son of Mr. Benjamin Bowersock of West Elm street. The ceremony was performed at the Market Street Presbyterian church, by the Rev. Thomas H. Knutz.

Miss Jones was gowned in a beautiful suit of midnight blue tulle, and wore a corsage of white bride's roses. She was attended by her sisters, the Misses Helen and Mildred Jones. The bridegroom was attended by Everett Jones.

Immediately after the wedding the bride and groom went to the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious wedding breakfast was served. Pink and white roses were used throughout the house and were especially used in the dining room, where the breakfast was served. After the breakfast the couple left for their bridal tour, which will include a visit to Ann Arbor and Detroit. On their return they will live on West Elm street.

Yesterday the Shawnee Country club was the scene of two very pretty informal parties. The first one occurred at noon, when Mrs. T. D. McLaughlin entertained with a luncheon complimenting Mrs. Frank Fox of Sagertown, Pa., who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bates of Lakewood avenue. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Knisely of West Market street, entertained ten of their friends at dinner in honor of Paul Schaefer of Indianapolis. Mr. Schaefer is interested in golf, holding at present the championship of Indiana.

Miss Lillian Beall of Richlie avenue, left this morning for Chicago. She will be gone about two months, and will visit her father's brother, Louis H. Beall, and wife. John Beall accompanied his daughter, and will stay in Chicago the rest of the week.

Mrs. Bertha Colvin of South Cole street, who attended the Bi-annual of the Woman's Federation of Clubs at New York, returned to her home yesterday. Mrs. Colvin, after the convention, went to Wilmington, Delaware, where she joined Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Broadwater and Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Grubb in a motor trip along the Atlantic coast. Mrs. Colvin was the honor guest of many lovely parties given by a host of friends.

Among the teachers who have left for summer study at the University of Columbia, are Mrs. Jennie Dager, Miss Sadie Mussen, Miss Mary Conrath, Miss Sallie Smith and Miss Anna Conrath.

Mrs. Howard Benner delightfully entertained the Junior Bridge club and a number of guests at her home, West Auglaize street, Tuesday evening, June 27. Throughout the rooms a profusion of garden flowers were used effectively. A large basket of daisies and fernery graced the center of the dining room table, and small bouquets of the same were placed upon the other tables, around which the guests were seated, where the delicious two-course lunch was served, and the evening's game of bridge was played. Prizes for high score were awarded to Mrs. A. J. Brown and Miss Marie McFarland. Mrs. Robert Horn of Lima, was the only out-of-town guest—Wapakoneta News.

Only members of the immediate families attended the marriage of Miss Clara Loyer and Jacob R. Bowersock of Hume yesterday. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's father, Samuel Loyer of Shawnee township, the Rev. C. H. Eckert officiating. The bride was attractively gowned in a dress of white organdy, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Bowersock left immediately after the ceremony for Toledo. After their return they will reside on the Bowersock farm.

The Rev. W. J. Dunham was the officiating minister last evening at the wedding of Miss Nina Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Goodwin of Albert street and Mr. George H. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher of Atlantic avenue. The ceremony was performed at the home of the officiator, the young couple being attended by Miss Naomi Copp and George Everett.

Yesterday seemed to be the day of marriages and among them was the marriage of Miss Lesta Trice and Mr. Carl Redderson. The ceremony was performed in the morning at the home of the Rev. Arthur E. Bay, who officiated. They were unattended.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Trice of West Elm street, and prior to her marriage was in the employ of the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company. Mr. and Mrs. Redderson will live on East Market street after their return from their trip to Chicago.

Mrs. Cleve Patton is the house guest of Mrs. William S. Altenburger.

Mrs. L. W. Hick left yesterday for a visit with her son, H. R. Hick and family of Delphos.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Neely are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Clapper of Delphos.

Mrs. Louis Bonifas is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Elmer Bachelder, for a few days.

One of the prettiest of June weddings was that of Miss Nella Hoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoff of North Pine street and Mr. Dean M. Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jennings of North Jefferson, which occurred at the home of Rev. T. W. Hoernemann Tuesday evening.

The bride wore a simple white dress and carried a bouquet of bride's roses, and was attended by Miss Minnie Hoff. The bridegroom was attended by Albert Hoff. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom went to the home of the bridegroom's parents where a wedding supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Jennings left for their bridal tour. On their return they will be at home to their friends at 1056 Jefferson street.

Miss Virginia Wirley of Kenton will be the house guest of Miss Helen Pence next week.

Miss Gertrude Parker of Prospect avenue left yesterday for Birmingham, Ala., where she will join her sister, Mrs. J. B. Harlow.

HOW MINES ARE LAID AND FIRED.

One of the ways in which the beligerent nations lay mines in harbors and other waters is described in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine. On one deck of a vessel are several narrow tracks supporting the mines, each of which is mounted on wheels. Each mine is in turn rolled to the stern and by means of special launching trucks, is dropped into the sea without tilting. A mine of the character described is made up of three parts: A spherical floating chamber containing the explosive, etc., an anchor chamber which is connected with the former by a cable, and a weighted sounding Jack Forsyth is Quite Satisfied That He Got Margie Instead of Ethel for a Wife.

"THE Gordons must be very wealthy," said Margie Forsyth to her husband after their guests had departed. "Did you notice the lovely broad cloth suit she wore when she came?"

"No." That is just like you; small encouragement from you a woman would have to spend much on clothes," laughed Margie. "Well, take my word for it, the suit was stunning. A d Ethel bought an other Saturday and ran in debt for it. She said she had not come prepared to shop exactly what she and had found wanted."

"How did she happen to tell you she did not pay for it?" asked Jack in astonishment.

"She wanted to use our name as a reference. I knew you were busy and so I called up Marsh's and told them that Mrs. Gordon was an old friend of yours. That made it all right, of course."

"Hm—so that is the way she's begun. I am sorry," Jack shook his head thoughtfully.

"Ought I to have called you up? I thought you surely would let her use your name and so—"

"Oh, that is all right. Of course I could not refuse such a request, but I am sorry Ethel is turning out like her mother. Though it is only what you would naturally expect, after the training she has had. Mrs. Mertage cares for nothing but dress and display. Her poor husband works like a galley slave early and late. He never takes a vacation; never has any pleasure; his nose is always to the grindstone. Ethel is so pretty that it is natural for her to think mostly of decking herself, I suppose. A woman must have some character to rise above it—"

"Is that the reason you chose a line. The length of the latter is equal to the depth at which the mine is to float. When the end of the sounding line strikes bottom the lessening of its pull throws a pawl which prevents the drum in the anchor chamber from paying out more cable to the sphere. Consequently the latter is drawn under water to a depth equal to the length of the sounding line. The anchor chamber settles to the bottom. A page illustration in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine depicts graphically this method of mine laying.

FOOD SOURCES UNTOUCHED.

Anyone who has traveled through the tropics, studying the production of food stuffs there at first hand, cannot fail to understand that vast potential food sources still lie untouched. The wonderful discoveries of Ross and Reed and their coadjutors of the methods of preventing malaria and yellow fever, followed by the mastery of the secrets of the bubonic plague and beriberi, and the application of these lessons in Cuba, at Panama and elsewhere in the tropical world, have made it possible for civilized man to open up gardens of plenty of which he never before dreamed. Untold millions of acres of dense jungles are, so far as man is concerned, nothing more than lands of infinite richness waiting their sweetness upon the desert air of unutilized opportunities.—Exchange.

PERSONALITIES I HAVE MET

Copyright 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

DO you know that the marvelous Nazimova is going to appear upon the screen? Yes, it is true, and we are all watching eagerly for her first picture, which will be "The War Brides," so we understand at the present writing.

For the last two or three years many have marveled why Nazimova had not done a picture, as most of the great artists had appeared upon the screen in at least one five-reel feature.

This is the question I asked her several years ago when I met her for the first time on the train coming from California to New York.

One morning mother and I passed through a private car on our way to the dining car, and we were astounded when the people in the car applauded our entrance. But a minute later it was explained—it was Madame Nazimova's private car which had been attached in the night and she had expressed a wish to meet me when told we were on the same train.

This was our first introduction—a memorable one to me. I asked her eager questions about her art and the Russian school of acting, and she in her turn wished to hear about pictures. She expressed a desire to appear upon the screen, but was so timid of the appraising eye of the camera she was afraid she would not be successful.

I told her then she would be very lovely in pictures, and that some day

I hoped to see her upon the screen. She was one of the most charming actresses I have ever met—so unaffected and so generous in her praise of others. Her great, dark, sparkling eyes flashed message of fire when she talked, even about the most trivial little details of life. We noticed then the strong yet sensitive lines of her mouth. She is an exquisite Russian type, the midnight hair brushed back and coiled in a simple knot at her neck, with wonderful slender, caressing hands.

She did not act toward the rest of the company as if she were the star, but just as one of them, and that is the epitome of her whole existence—simplicity. I remembered how she laughed when I told her that after seeing her in "The Dolls House" and "Belladonna" one of my greatest ambitions had been to wear a long dress, a high collar and imitate Nazimova!

And again we talked pictures, Madame Nazimova saying she did not think she would ever be popular on the screen because she thought the American public did not care to see her type of plays. They wanted more the innocent, simple stories and not the big, pulsing dramas and tragedies of life.

"A great artist can make a melodrama a classic," I assured her, but she still felt at that time it was hopeless.

"I am only for the stage," she replied. Of course, her quaint little accent

Harrison Clark—I am sorry, but I am unable to give you any information regarding any star's private life.

Helene M.—Yes, college men make good "extras". It is most certainly an honorable way to pay one's way through school.

K. L. M.—Sorry, but I can't help you market your scenarios. I know how hard it is, too, and wish I could help you.

Anna J.—I cannot suggest any names of persons for you to see in regard to entering pictures. (2) No way except through personal interview with casting directors.

Josephine G.—I don't believe if you have had time to go to moving picture theatres three and sometimes five times a day for the past year you are very industrious. Why not more reading and study if you wish to become an actress?

P. D. T.—It is true that some of the prettiest actresses do not "screen well".

Following is a copy of a letter written by the president to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt:

"June 19, 1916.
"My Dear Mrs. Catt:
"I was away from the city and did not get your telegram of June 16 promptly.
"I am very glad to make my position about the suffrage plank adopted by the convention clear to you, though I had not thought that it was necessary to state again a position I have repeatedly stated with entire frankness. The plank received my entire approval before its adoption and I shall support its principle with sincere pleasure. I wish to join with my fellow democrats in recommending to the several states that they extend the suffrage to women upon the same terms as to men.
"Cordially and sincerely yours,

OUTING OF GROCERS HAS 1500 CROWD

Prizes Awarded in All Sorts of Sports on Land and Water.

If the success of the first monthly outing of the Grocers' Meat Dealers' and Clerks' association at McCullough's lake park, yesterday afternoon and evening, is a criterion by which to judge, then their next outing, the annual picnic to be held at Cedar Point on Wednesday, July 19, will be the biggest and best yet held.

More than 1,500 persons attended the picnic and outing at the park. In the athletic sports and field contests, Miss Helen Wells won the ball-driving contest, with Mrs. Frank Schenk as second. Mrs. J. H. Curry was given a prize for having the largest family of children at the picnic. Seven of her offspring attended. Prizes were also given the heaviest and the lightest weight women on the grounds. The fat woman tipped the scales at 231 and the lean one at 80.

Kirk Baxter won the sack race for boys. Mrs. R. Edwards won in the ball-throwing contest. Howard Austin won the fat man's race. In the three-legged race, Baxter Stout was successful, Robert McClellan won the free-for-all run and Mildred Weaver and Dorothy Benson the woman's race. Grocers were successful over the butchers in the tug-of-war.

In the aquatic sports, John Lee won the swimming race and C. W. Jay the boat race.

A big picnic supper was served in the evening and dancing closed the day's festivities.

T. A. Rupright, chairman, I. L. Morris, J. E. Morton, Frank Schenk, Alfred Shumate, Clyde Myers and M. E. Kellogg were the committee in charge, to whom the great success of the outing is due.

NOTICE ELKS.

There will be a regular meeting of Lima Lodge No. 54, B. P. O. Elks, this evening at 8 o'clock. Business of importance. All members requested to be present.

PILES RELIEVED

Also Eczema, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Old Sores and Carbuncles.

Under the influence of San Cura Ointment surprising improvement is made so quickly that it seems almost miraculous.

Stubborn cases of piles like those of Rev. W. E. Gilbert of Titusville, Pa., vanish before the marvelous antiseptic Ointment. Mr. Gilbert writes:

"For twenty years I suffered with bleeding and itching piles; at times I was confined to the house for more than a month. Two years ago I began using San Cura Ointment and one 50c jar made a firm and permanent cure. I have not been troubled since."

San Cura Ointment is guaranteed by Minor M. Keltner, who is the agent in Lima, to help any of the above named diseases or money back. It relieves pain from burns, cuts and bruises, draws out the poison and often heals in a short time. 25c and 50c a jar at Minor M. Keltner's.

GOOD BABY SOAP.

San Cura Soap is a healing and antiseptic soap; just the soothing kind that baby needs. It frees the pores from impurities and prevents rashes and other skin diseases. Fine for any one's skin; banishes blackheads and pimples, clears the complexion. 25c a cake at Minor M. Keltner's Enterprise Drug Store.

Japan In World War to Close China's Door

American Interests in Far East in Danger From Steady Aggression.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

IV. JAPAN AND THE WORLD-WAR

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The news that Japan had declared war on Germany in August, 1914, attracted comparatively little attention when it reached the United States. In the shower of ultimatums flying about, Japan's seemed far-away and unimportant. Today it begins to look as though that ultimatum would be fraught with more consequences for this country than any of those exchanged between European capitals.

Japan's step in declaring war certainly did not arouse any appreciable opposition in the United States. Americans took it for granted that she went in under the Anglo-Japanese alliance. Such Americans as took an interest in far eastern politics remembered that the Anglo-Japanese alliance provided only for defensive warfare when the Oriental territories or interests of either power should be threatened by a third power. Germany was not threatening England's far eastern interests, except in a very general and secondary way; but the terms of alliances have been stretched before, and Japan's action seemed to most neutral observers, justifiable enough.

Germany held in Kiao-Chao, her Chinese port, a possible base for naval operations against the allies. Japan pointed to this fact as reason for her own move. A base for naval warfare in the east must be regarded as a point hostile to England's far eastern interests, and hence as open to attack under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. At the time that this point was raised, those who saw the possible consequences of Japanese action to the United States and China, suggested that Germany would be glad to refrain, voluntarily, from using Kiao-Chao as a naval base, rather than lose it, as she certainly must before Japan's attack. China actually brought the expedient formally to the attention of the United States and Japan, as the two powers most interested, after herself. The choice was never offered Germany, however. Japan sent an ultimatum instead.

England's attitude toward Japan's course is particularly interesting. Officially, Japan was received into the list of belligerents with open arms. Popular sentiment in England took the same stand. A declaration of war on Germany was a sure bid for popularity in the British empire. But there is little doubt that English statesmen and diplomats would much prefer to see Japan a neutral power rather than a belligerent. Her greatest help to the allies has been her manufacture of munitions for Russia. She could do that without declaring war. As it is, her course has upset that carefully piled apple-cart officially known as the balance of power in the far east.

At any rate, Japan went into the war. She dispatched an expedition against Kiao-Chao. Kiao-Chao is a port on the southern coast of the Shantung peninsula, which forms a part of one of the most thickly populated provinces in North China. Japan, however, did not land her troops on the southern coast of the peninsula. She adopted the somewhat remarkable and inexplicable procedure of landing on the north coast, one hundred and eighty miles from the port she had set out to attack. China had declared a war-zone, but she naturally did not make it large enough to include the whole peninsula. As Japan marched overland, she seized whole railways, running hundreds of miles out of the war-zone. She violated China's neutrality on a large scale. England went into the greatest war in history over a violation of Belgium's neutrality. Nobody went to war to defend China's.

Japan worked southward through Shantung and took Kiao-Chao, as it was obvious from the first that she would take it. The one feature of the campaign that came somewhat unexpectedly was England's action in sending a British expeditionary force to co-operate with the Japanese. The reason for such a course is plain. England wants to have a voice in the negotiations that will ultimately determine the disposition of the spoils of the campaign, and her expeditionary force gives her the right to such a voice. Japan could not refuse the assistance of her ally, but England's course was not popular in Japan. Japan did not need any help and did not want it.

England's course holds out the best hope of an ultimate square deal for both the United States and China in the matter, for England's interests in the matter lie along the same lines with our interests and China's. China wants the "Open Door" policy, with its guarantee of equal commercial rights to all nations and territorial spheres of influence to none, because it represents China's best chance for continuing as a nation instead of being split up among the powers. The United States wants the Open Door perpetuated, because in case the sphere of influence doctrine is revived, we will be left out of China absolutely.

In one clause of the Shantung treaty between Japan and China lies a grave menace to American interests, and America's future. China agrees to consent to the transfer by Germany to Japan of all her rights in Shantung. Now Germany's agreement with China in this matter provides that German merchants and German capital shall have first call on the trade and development of the province, and only in the event of Germany's declining to do the work is China "at liberty to act as she pleases." It was this particular clause that moved the far-sighted John Hay to build up the intricate series of agreements which constitute the Open Door in China. Now this privilege of Germany's passes to Japan.

In the case of Germany the preferential rights involved in the clause were not much of a menace to America or to European powers, because Germany soon found that they constituted a doubtful benefit. If she tried to shut the door in Shantung, England shut the door in the rich Yangtze valley, France close her out of the far south, and Russia and Japan could exercise their similar privileges against her in the north. So the door was kept open all around, to the great benefit of the United States, whose merchants ask nothing more than a fair field and no favors. It is highly improbable that Japan will continue the German policy in the matter, if she succeeds permanently to Germany's privileges.

Japan guaranteed the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Korea in all her treaties and proclamations up to the second renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. Then the point was unobtrusively dropped, and today Korea is an integral part of the Japanese empire. Japan also guaranteed the territorial integrity of China and the open door doctrine in Chinese territory; today the great Chinese province of Manchuria is absolutely dominated by Japan, and American trade is falling off rapidly. Judging the future by the past, as well as by Japan's actions in Shantung in the past year, it is only reasonable to deduce that the door will be closed in Shantung also.

Such a course affects the United States gravely in two ways. In the first place, the stability of an arrangement such as the open door doctrine, by which all of the powers agree to treat foreigners on an equal basis with their own nationalities, even in those Chinese provinces which they dominate, depends for its stability entirely on the good faith of all concerned. If one of the parties violates the spirit of the contract, self-defense compels all the others to do likewise. If a number of merchants established a fixed price for flour and agree not to sell below that price, the scheme works so long as they all hold by it. If one of them cuts the price, all the others have to follow suit.

So in China, if one power again sets up a sphere of influence, the others will have to drop the open door and go back to their own respective spheres.

The establishment of a sphere of influence is opposed to all American theories of commerce and international relations. The American wants the government to stay out of business. Give him a fair chance and he can look out for himself. The American government, moreover, does not want to establish a sphere of influence to dominate in a helpless nation. Such a proceeding is repugnant to all our ideas. The United States proposed and established the open door policy.

Even if the United States should make a virtue of necessity and enter the scramble for a sphere of her own, China has practically nothing left to give. Russia and Japan in Manchuria and Mongolia, now Japan in Shantung, England in central China, France in the south, leave nothing but the metropolitan province of Chih-li in the heart of the Chinese government, the seat of Peking, over which China can certainly not be expected to give up any rights. So a return to the sphere of influence doctrine would be a death-blow to American commerce in China.

It has been said that our commerce to China does not amount to much. We are told that our trade with Japan is much greater, that our logical course is to co-operate with Japan in trading with China—or, as it might be put less euphemistically, in exploiting China. Aside from the ethics of the case, such an idea is extremely short-sighted. The development of the tremendous natural resources of China has hardly begun. She is one of the richest countries on earth. Her 400 million people are just beginning to demand the products of western industry. When that demand rises, China will be the greatest market the world has ever seen. For the United States to resign her right to free competition in that market would be a costly and colossal blunder.

One other aspect of the Shantung situation is worth careful consideration. Japan's course points to an elimination of Germany from the trade of the Orient. The allies have already declared their intention of forcing German trade from all their dominions. That means India, Australia, Canada, most of Africa. There is nothing left but South America. In other words, if Germany is to be eliminated from the Orient, the merchants of the United States in building up their carefully planned and much desired trade with the Latin American republics will have thrown against them the full force of the most efficient and scientific export organization of the modern world. Germany will put up a terrific fight for trade wherever she can get it when the war is over.

By entering the world conflict, Japan has created a whole set of new issues and problems. It is unfortunate that her course should have been along lines diametrically opposed to American principles; that the results of that course should promise to be uniformly unfavorable to American interests.
